Lancashire Aero Club and the GDPR

The General Data Protection Regulation is a EU measure that came into force in May 2018. It defines how organisations, businesses and clubs must safeguard personal information collected in the course of their activities. The Lancashire Aero Club uses members' information for communication and membership administration purposes. We are now obliged to explain to you our process for doing so.

The Club holds names, email addresses, postal addresses, and information about members' flying qualifications and details of any aircraft associated with the member concerned where the member has volunteered this information. Consent for the Club to use this information is necessary for an applicant to be accepted into membership, and is notified via the application form. Members' information is held on a master database for the duration of membership, overseen by our financial administrator. No one else has access to this raw data apart from the Treasurer, the Membership Secretary and the committee member delegated to send out Club emails (at the moment this is the Honorary Secretary). The Membership Secretary is designated as the Data Protection Officer.

The Club does not share any personal information with any third party except with the permission of the member concerned. The only variation to this would be in the case of a court order compelling a disclosure.

Individual members have the right to a full disclosure of all information held on them by the Club. They have the right to have any inaccurate information corrected. Members have the right to have their information deleted (although this will obviously preclude receipt of any mailings from the Club). Finally, when members leave the Club their personal information will be deleted.

If you have any questions about the Club's data protection policy please write to
